1. On 19 April 1951, construction work at the Werneuchen airfield was in full swing. A total of 1,050 workers were employed there.
2. German construction workers employed at the field said on 18 April that 800 to 1,000 workers were employed in day and night shifts on the construction of a runway 80 meters wide and that the construction work at the field was scheduled to be completed about early September 1951. These workers further stated that they had been previously employed at the Neuruppin airfield. *

25X1A * [REDACTED] Comment. The improvement work seems to have been started at the field. So far only preliminary work has been observed. A runway approximately 2,500 meters long is scheduled to be constructed at the field. [REDACTED] 25X1A
